

United Nations Population Fund

UNFPA, the United Nations Population Fund, is an international development agency with a mission to “deliver a world where every pregnancy is wanted, every child birth is safe and every young person’s potential is fulfilled”.

These efforts are guided by:

- Programme of Action adopted at the International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD) in 1994;
- Millennium Development Goals (MDGs); and
- UNFPA’s global Strategic Plan 2014-2017.

UNFPA has been working in Indonesia since 1972 on programmes related to sexual and reproductive health (SRH) and family planning, population development, HIV/AIDS and gender equality. As the world’s fourth most populous country, Indonesia remains a priority country for UNFPA, but the terms of engagement now reflect progress achieved and the country’s evolving population dynamics and level of development.

Eighth Country Programme (2011-2015)

The roadmap for UNFPA’s partnership with Government of Indonesia (GOI) over this five-year cycle sets out seven outcomes and nine targeted outputs to provide technical and strategic assistance. UNFPA’s work focuses on strengthening national capacity in the following areas:

- Population dynamics and its interlinkages with the needs of young people including adolescents, SRH including family planning, gender equality and poverty reduction;
- Advocacy on the ICPD principles and MDGs, including South-South Cooperation;
- Achieving universal access to RH services;
- Implementation of Minimum Initial Service Package (MISP) in humanitarian settings;
- Revitalizing the family planning programme to address unmet needs;
- Prevention of sexual transmission of HIV;
- Addressing gender-based violence (GBV), including in humanitarian settings
- Improved SRH education and services for adolescents and young people; and
- The effective use of data on population dynamics, youth, gender equality and SRH, including in humanitarian settings.
